Session 071, IFLA Market - Current and future of media communications
Carol Luper, well-known Columbus, Ohio, retired news presenter and host of the weekly Sunday morning show Newsmakers, has interviewed numerous local and national celebrities during her career, including U.S. Presidents, Senators, the Governor of Ohio, prominent singers, actors, musicians, and journalists. During Carol’s 40 years in radio and television, she has seen many changes in the ways news media communicates with us and how we communicate with each other. Carol agreed to share some tips with us and her observations on the current and future of media communications. We hope that she will inspire attendees to think about the ways they communicate to the public and to other librarians around the world.

Session 078, Copyright Matters! Libraries and National Copyright Reform Initiatives - Copyright and Other Legal Matters (CLM) (SI)

Copyright matters for libraries. It is copyright, or rather exceptions and limitations to the monopoly power it offers rights-holders, that allow libraries to lend, copy, preserve, and supply works for non-commercial purposes without having to seek approval, or make payment, every time. But librarians in every country work under different sets of exceptions – or may have no statutory exceptions at all! And the rapid advance of digital technologies raise new challenges for libraries in all countries. This session will offer an overview of recent and ongoing copyright reforms in various countries around the world, and how they are impacting on the work of libraries.

The world continues to experience a rapid pace of change since the launch of the IFLA Trend Report in 2013. The IFLA President’s Session will focus on how libraries have been responding to the continual changes in the information environment. The IFLA Trend report identified 5 high-level trends which have been discussed across the international library community over the past three years. Many in our community have answered the call to action. The session will see the publication of a new update report summarising these discussions and the community’s response to the Trend Report. To set the context, four high-level speakers will present keynote thoughts on how emerging trends since 2013 have continued to pose challenges and opportunities for the information sector, and how innovative actors are responding to those challenges with new services and approaches to information provision. Following the presentations, the IFLA President will moderate a discussion between the speakers and the audience that focuses on deeper examination of what’s new for librarians to consider. How will new trends affect us when designing services? What should we be prioritising when developing new policies to support access to information in our libraries? And what should we be ready to push back against, to defend the ideal of freedom of expression?

Session 097, How do international relations add value? Innovation through internationalisation - National Organizations and International Relations Special Interest Group (SIG)

This Special Interest Group aims to be a forum for those who work in the realm of international relations to develop tools and networks and to advocate for their work both within their own organisations and with the broader IFLA professional community. Come along to the session if you want to hear more or think you might be able to contribute to that work.
Session 097a, Bringing the 'Maker Movement' to Libraries and Beyond - Idea Foundry

Four phenomena have merged to empower innovators like never before. These are: free education (YouTube, MOOCs); open source design software (Inkscape; Sketchup); digital prototyping resources (3D printers, laser cutters); and crowdfunding (Kickstarter, Indiegogo). As long as someone has access to the internet, they can learn, design, prototype, and crowdfund nearly anything. Learn how this culture can spread to libraries, and beyond.

Speaker:
Alex Bandar (Founder and CEO of the Idea Foundry)

Session 097b, Redefining the LSP from the inside out - EBSCO

This presentation will discuss a new library and vendor collaboration that is working towards establishing a new model in library automation. The presenter will look at open source as the foundation of an open, and extensible platform built on flexibility and choice; one that allows for the ready deployment, development, and integration of applications - from multiple providers - in support of knowledge creation, data mining, research and learning objectives, and overall institutional needs.

Session 104, The Internet’s New Gatekeepers? Net Neutrality and Libraries - Copyright and Other Legal Matters (CLM) with Committee on Freedom of Access to Information and Freedom of Expression (FAIFE) (SI)

Net Neutrality is the term used to describe the principle by which all traffic – films, music, documents – is treated equally over an internet connection. It is threatened by actors who seek to give preference to one type of traffic over another, effectively restricting choice and determining which parts of the internet people will find easiest to use. Inevitably, the most powerful will be better placed to optimise the performance of their content. For libraries, whose mission is to give access to knowledge equitably, the idea that access should be controlled or made harder for reasons which have nothing to do with fundamental rights is a worrying one. This session will explain more about what net neutrality is, and what it means for librarians and library workers, as summed up in IFLA’s Statement on the topic.

The Other Wes Moore: One Name, Two Fates

New York Times best-selling author and youth advocate Wes Moore knows that being a leader, both in your personal life and in the business world, comes down to one thing: personal responsibility. Drawing on his experiences as a leader in the public and private sectors and in the military, Moore explains that embracing your own personal responsibility – and holding yourself accountable for your choices – is a quality that makes great "transformational leaders": leaders who create a vision, then inspire and empower those around them to execute that vision.

Session 122, Who's in control? Privacy, the Internet and libraries - Committee on Freedom of Access to Information and Freedom of Expression (FAIFE) (SI)

Day by day issues of privacy and the internet are becoming more challenging for librarians as digital services in libraries continue to grow. This session focuses on a number of case studies concerning privacy, libraries and the internet, both those where we can influence the issues and those which have an impact but which are beyond our control. The case studies are followed by a panel discussion on the issues raised during the session, particularly focusing on questions from the audience.

Session 127, Officers Capacity Building: skills for the future, sharing good practice

IFLA’s Section Officers work with their Standing Committees to develop Action Plans, communicate the results of their activities, and run successful meetings. IFLA’s Professional Units contain many examples of good practice. Some of these examples will be shared for discussion about what makes an effective and dynamic IFLA Section or Special Interest Group. Participants will be asked to share their own experiences with their colleagues and help identify ways to support the incoming Officers in 2017. There should also be time to ask questions about Professional Unit procedures for the coming year. Officers, Information Coordinators and SIG Conveners with very specific questions are invited to make an appointment with a member of the Professional Committee or HQ Staff as appropriate through the “Clinic”. The Officers’ network will receive information about the Clinic before the Congress. The session is specifically for Officers (Chairs and Secretaries of IFLA Sections), IFLA Information Coordinators and Special Interest Group Conveners though observers are welcome to attend, especially anyone interested in participating more fully in the committees of IFLA’s Professional Units. The session will be repeated on Wednesday (session 169) for those who can’t attend today.

Session 146, ‘Data Across Borders: Discovering and Describing Rare Materials’ - Rare Books and Special Collections

Collections of rare materials have always been international: items have crossed borders to end up in collections far from their place of creation, and the people who want to discover the collections and interrogate the data relating to them may come from anywhere in the world. However the borders of the title are also professional - the languages of bibliography, cataloguing, conservation, and digitization processes and metadata through which rare materials may be described. This session will present some of the key issues relating to the description of rare materials such as national bibliographies and their re-use, the impact of RDA on the international landscape of rare book cataloguing, and the increased creation and use of metadata relating to rare materials in libraries by the digital humanities academic community, and will invite discussion of a set of position statements relating to these issues with a view to identifying areas of common interest and concern and contributing to the development of guidelines for principles and best practice for the creation and sharing of metadata relating to cultural heritage collections.

Session 169, Officers Capacity Building: skills for success, sharing good practice

IFLA's Section Officers work with their Standing Committees to develop Action Plans, communicate the results of their activities, and run successful meetings. IFLA's Professional Units contain many examples of good practice. Some of these examples will be shared for discussion about what makes an effective and dynamic IFLA Section or Special Interest Group. Participants will be asked to share their own experiences with their colleagues and help identify ways to support the incoming Officers in 2017. There should also be time to ask questions about Professional Unit procedures for the coming year. Officers, Information Coordinators and SIG Conveners with very specific questions are invited to make an appointment with a member of the Professional Committee or HQ Staff as appropriate through the “Clinic”. The Officers’ network will have received information about the Clinic before the Congress. The session is specifically for Officers (Chairs and Secretaries of IFLA Sections), IFLA Information Coordinators and Special Interest Group Conveners though observers are welcome to attend, especially anyone interested in participating more fully in the committees of IFLA’s Professional Units. This session is for those who could not attend session 127 which took place on Tuesday.

Session 182, Semantic Web and Linked data Special Interest Group open discussion session - Semantic Web (SIG)

The IFLA Semantic Web Special Interest Group (SWSIG) is a platform intended to develop, enhance and facilitate the adoption of semantic web technologies in the library community. One of the main goals of the SIG is to strengthen and transform the professional knowledge of libraries in the semantic web area by providing education and information to IFLA professionals, raise awareness among the library community about the relevance and potential of semantic web technologies for libraries, and improve librarians’ know-how in this area. The topic of semantic web and linked data, while very technical, now touches an increasing number of librarians in all kind of positions, institutions and countries. Many of them are in demand of explanations, information, feedback on projects and exchange of experience. Come along to participate in our meeting and discussion if you wish to be part of this work.

Session 182a, Translating RDA - Translating RDA

Session 191, Public access in libraries, hosted by IFLA in connection with the Dynamic Coalition on Public Libraries - IFLA Headquarters with Dynamic Coalition on Public Libraries (Internet Governance Forum)

The UN 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development identifies ICTs and the Internet as horizontal enablers for development. At the moment, half of the world’s population lacks access to information online. Worldwide, more than a million libraries ensure that information and the skills to use it are available to everyone – making them critical institutions for all in the digital age. Public access to Internet through libraries is strongly promoted by IFLA and together with EIFL (Electronic Information for Libraries) we have mobilised many stakeholders in the Dynamic Coalition on Public Access in Libraries, which works within the context of the UN Internet Governance Forum to promote the role libraries play in public access to information. This session will give an overview of IFLA’s involvement in regional and global Internet Governance Forums, and an introduction to the Global Connect, an initiative launched by the U.S. State Department in September 2015 with the purpose to bring 1.5 billion people online by 2020.

Session 193, What makes a dynamic IFLA Professional Unit? - Professional Committee Session

Officers of IFLA Sections, Information Coordinators and Special Interest Group (SIG) Conveners have a leading role in defining the activities of an IFLA Section or SIG. The IFLA Professional Committee wants to discuss with them, and develop during the next year, the concept of a dynamic IFLA Professional Unit and look at how Officers, Information Coordinators, or SIG Conveners can work with their committees towards improving their effectiveness. The session will include a few short presentations and some activities that will be carried out round group tables. Worksheets will be sent in advance to Officers and SIG Conveners to complete in consultation with their committee in preparation for the session. These will be discussed round the group tables and a facilitator will summarize the results. The session is specifically for Officers (Chairs and Secretaries of IFLA Sections), IFLA Information Coordinators and Special Interest Group Conveners, though observers are welcome to attend, especially anyone interested in participating more fully in the committees of IFLA’s Professional Units.

Session 203, Exploratory Meeting - Digital Humanities (DH)/Digital Scholarship (DS) Special Interest Group (SIG)

Please join us for an exploratory meeting on an evolving and exciting theme of how the global library and information service professionals can play a leading role in creation, supporting, disseminating and preservation of 21st century digital scholarship. You will have opportunity to participate, contribute, and lead the formation of this first of its kind IFLA Digital Humanities/Digital Scholarship Special Interest Group! Libraries play a vital role in the 21st century scholarly ecosystem. As researchers increasingly pursue digital scholarship, particularly in digital humanities areas (the creation, production, analysis, publishing, dissemination and long term preservation of new scholarship using digital and/or computational techniques), they often present different challenges and demands for academic and research libraries. As users' information and knowledge seeking behavior are increasingly driven by digital innovations, academic, public, school, special and all types of libraries are facing tremendous new challenges. Today, libraries around the world have taken courageous steps to re-articulate their value propositions, re-configure and re-train their workforce, re-assess their operational models and efficiency, and re-purpose their spaces and resources under the evolving and emerging digital scholarship landscape. The creation of the IFLA Digital Humanities/Digital Scholarship Special Interest Group (SIG) will provide a new international platform for IFLA community digital scholarship/digital humanities discussion on a continuous basis. Our exploring meeting would like to touch base on those questions such as: •What has been evolving in the scholarship ecosystem in this digital age? •What role have libraries played in the traditional scholarship ecosystem, and what role should libraries play in the changed ecosystem? •What are core skill sets, mind sets and/or competencies that library professionals should have in order to engage the new modes of scholarship? •What kind of spaces should libraries design for DH/DS? •What is the best structure and format of SIG to move forward? e.g. programming, communication, and community etc.

Session 205, Librarians, the gears of the motors of change - President-Elect’s Session

Working together on a global vision of the need for a professional, powerful mind-set. In an era of global communication, where information can be provided through a wide variety of media and smart devices, libraries have an important role to play in developing the skills of users and upholding the right of access to information. Only through an effective network and partnership across all types of libraries, will we be able to fulfil our mission. Let’s use our working experience to promote access to knowledge through a network of all libraries worldwide, and to develop an international position agreement to improve access to information to help the development of individuals and communities. IFLA’s mission is clear and ambitious: we empower and inspire society by driving access to information, knowledge and culture for all, to support development, learning, creativity and innovation. But at the same time, the position of libraries is challenged with budget cuts, commercial competitors in the developing eBook market, and an out-dated copyright framework, which is hindering libraries in their work. Only with improved advocacy will we achieve universal access via libraries within a balanced information economy. Let’s analyse - together with librarians and Library Associations - what we need in order to empower librarians and make them the foundation for learning, and to build a better future for libraries and the societies they serve.

Session 225, Strategic Programme on Preservation and Conservation (PAC) with the Preservation and Conservation Section presents a film screening of Florence: Days of Destruction a documentary film by Franco Zeffirelli

Introductory remarks by Corrado di Tillio, Italian Library Association and by Jeanne Drewes, Library of Congress, United States. There will be time for an open discussion afterwards. About the Film: The University of Maryland Libraries shares its new digital restoration of the rare Franco Zeffirelli film, Florence: Days of Destruction (Italian title: Per Firenze) 1966. Zeffirelli’s only documentary, this film is a heartfelt call to action showing the effects of the 4 November 1966 flood that devastated Florence, Italy, and rallied art lovers worldwide. Produced by the famed Italian director in the days during and immediately following the flood, the film includes footage shot on 4 November and urged support to help rescue Italian works of art. Actor Richard Burton, who was working in Rome as the disaster unfolded, narrated and appeared in the film and appealed for aid. Frederick Hartt, a renowned scholar of Italian Renaissance Art and one of World War II’s Monuments Men, also gives an emotional testimony to the flood damage that he witnessed. The film also features interviews with a number of Florentine officials and “mud-angels.” The new digital restoration of the film includes footage of Senator Edward M. Kennedy during his visit to Florence and promoting the fund raising of the Committee for the Rescue of Italian Art (CRIA). In the days following the flood, volunteers from throughout Europe and the United States descended upon Florence to help recover books, paintings, and other works of art damaged by water and sediment from the Arno River. Efforts of these so-called “mud angels” helped to reduce the loss of Florence’s priceless cultural heritage. Some of these volunteers would go on to become art and book conservators. Conservators worldwide would later adopt standards and treatments developed as a result of recovery efforts. The attention the flood generated advanced a movement within academic research libraries to formalize book preservation programs. The University of Maryland Libraries’ Library Media Services Dept. holds the only copy of the English-language version of the film in a research library collection. RAI, the national Italian radio and television company, makes the black-and-white Italian version available on its website. With the kind permission of Maestro Zeffirelli, the University of Maryland Libraries is able to share its digitized copy of Florence: Days of Destruction.
